Here ya go:In a speech to the Conservative Political Action Conference on Thursday, Donald Trump criticized President Obama's "unacceptable" record on the Muslim registry and questioned the legality of a "new registry" that was launched during the first four months of his presidency.. His comments drew sharp rebukes from civil liberties organizations and conservatives who oppose such a registry, along with a barrage of online reactions from people who were outraged at their President's comments. Some called the president a bigot.
